noth directions. The start was lower than both directions. The start was lower than last night, the disposition being apparently to take profits on the action of the Democratic national convention. There has been buying of stocks recently on the assumption that with the uncertainty over the two candidates definitely removed these would be some outside demand for there would be some outside demand for At the lower level induced by this realizing an aggressive de-mand developed and prices advanced vig-arously. This movement had not proerously. This movement had not pro-ceeded far when stocks began to be of-fered in a volume and with a persistency that argued some large participation on the market on that side. Selling orders the market separate stocks came from an individual in 5,000 to 20,000 share portions, and this led to the supposition that plunging operations were being renewed on the

Some of the stocks which have figured most prominently in this week's rise were affected by an exhaustion of demand at the higher prices to which they have been the higher prices to which they have been carried, and the prices gave way easily before realizing sales. This was particu-larly true of American Smelting, Amal-gamated Copper and the two Hill railroad stocks, which were strong yesterday, and United States Steel, preferred, which rose buoyantly on a previous day. The senti-mental effect of these weak points was considerable and there was no such con-spicuous point of strength to offset it as during other periods of realizing during part of a recent spectacular performer in

The general list, therefore, showed more sympathy with this weakness than yesteday. There was a sudden drop of activity of the market during the midday period, after a firm hour's business larger than for any day of the week. News fac-tors were not important. Attention was given to various detailed reports of resumption of manufacturing plants here and there as corroborating the view of perceptible revival of industrial activity. The maintenance of the Baltimore & Ohio dividend came in for further discussion and for some criticism on the ground of the incursion into the profit and loss surplus to pay it.

The responsibility for the decision of the dividend question was attributed to the leading interests in the property and in the belief that this interest was iden-tical with the principal force back of the stock market in May, it was assumed that the same purpose to conserve the price level of stocks was thus experienced. arrency movement was the contribution to the week's estimated gain of the sub-treasury operations, notwithstanding the inks to that institution in response to the rall for return of government deposits. The banks have gained cash from this source since the last bank statement of $2.071,800 and receipts from the interior are believed to have brought the total gain to nearly $4,000,000. This marks some decline in the rate of the flow from the interior, and with the winter wheat crop beginning to move, this shift in the current of the currency movement may be expected to increase. June agricultural exports were only $2,748,000 less in value than last year, and with the continuance of the shrinkage in imports, substantial trade balance in favor of this country may be looked for, with consequent bearing on the exchange situation. The appearance of support in the market disappeared in the late dealings and the closing tone was

The unresponsive tone of the Liverpool market, prices for wheat on that exchange being only a trifle higher notwithstanding a sharp advance over yesterday. Considerable selling here at the opening resulted in a slight dip during the first few minutes of trading. Commission houses, however, were active bidders and this soon caused a sharp rally, prices advancing about 1 cent before the end of the first half hour. For a time sentiment in the pit continued bullish, inspired to a large extent by unseasonably high temperatures in the northwest, particularly in North Dakota. The market weakened again in the final hour owing to quite general Provisions were active and strong. The strength of corn and an advance of 10c in the price of live hogs were the chief influences. Offerings were meager throughout the session, and prices scored substantial gains. At the close September pork was up 32½c and lard was up 12½c and ribs were 15½17½c higher.
